

Lecturer, Sociology

The Department of Sociology/Anthropology within the Dyson College of Arts and Sciences of Pace University invites applications for an anticipated full-time position at the rank of Lecturer (non-tenure track) to begin September 2018. The Department offers an undergraduate program in Sociology/Anthropology and Urban Studies (minor). The position is located on Pace University's Pleasantville, New York, campus, which is 40 miles north of New York City.

Applicants must have earned a PhD or equivalent in Sociology, with some teaching experience and a research agenda in the broad fields of social inequality, social movements, and/or urban sociology, although applications with research in other subfields are also invited. Teaching responsibilities include Introduction to Sociology, Social Problems, Race and Ethnicity, Social Class, and Criminology; candidates will also be encouraged to develop courses related to their areas of expertise.

Applicants should send via email a single PDF that includes: cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of research interests, teaching evaluations (if available), and contact information for three references to cdavis3@pace.edu; please indicate SOC/ANT Faculty Search in the subject line. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by December 30, 2017 will receive full consideration.

Pace University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, women, veterans and individuals with disabilities are encouraged to apply.